Message From the ACFP President

On behalf of the ACFP Board of Directors, welcome to our ninth annual Practical Evidence for Informed Practice (PEIP) Conference. Although this year's conference will be predominantly virtual, we are proud to offer you the same great relevant, practice-changing program as safely as possible.

I would like to acknowledge the leadership and dedication of our conference chair, Dr. Mike Kolber. His passion and commitment for this event is electric. Through the combined efforts of Dr. Kolber, our hard-working Planning Committee, and ACFP staff, this marquee event was able to adapt to the current situation while maintaining the educational standards PEIP is known for. Thank you for your time and commitment to serving our members, multidisciplinary teams, and strengthening the Patient's Medical Home.

This conference continues to be developed in collaboration with the Patients Experience Evidence & Research (PEER) team. It is because of this connection, the ACFP is leading the country in CPD. The Board proudly supports the programs, evidence-based resources, and other products produced from this collaboration as they unequivocally provide member value.

Finally, thank you to our attendees for making the time to participate in the PEIP conference in person or by webcast. We appreciate your support.

Have a wonderful conference experience,

Vishal Bhella, MD, CCFP
President, Alberta College of Family Physicians

Welcome From the Chair

On behalf of our Planning Committee and the Alberta College of Family Physicians, I wish to welcome you to the ninth annual Practical Evidence for Informed Practice (PEIP) Conference.

We thank you for joining us at this unique forum of discussion and discovery of practical and clinically relevant, evidence-based information.

PEIP remains completely free of industry bias, keeping education separate from industry. The PEIP Planning Committee has made concerted efforts to ensure that conference presenters are also free from industry funding (payments for presentations or for clinical trial participation) within the last two years.

The planning committee and the ACFP have worked hard to adjust this year's event to the COVID situation. As a result, we will primarily be delivering PEIP to attendees by webcast while hosting a small number of in person participants. PEIP has been delivered by webcast since 2016; allowing individuals to stream the conference live in the comfort of their homes or clinics whilst encouraging small group learning. The Webcast format has received overwhelmingly positive feedback with over 99% of webcast attendees wishing to join future years via webcast.

We have an amazing group of speakers and topics lined up for this year's program and we assure you it will be one of the best PEIPs you've attended.

For conference details at your fingertips and to maximize your conference experience, please download the PEIP 2020 conference app. It houses everything from session handouts and evaluations, to your personal notes and audience participation activities (live polling). Also within the app, you will find an "About PEER" section, highlighting the many projects the PEER team is currently working on and learn of ways you can "Get Involved" in what we do.

We hope the PEIP Conference engages your critical thinking and informs your decision making when discussing tests, interventions, or prognosis with your patients. We believe you will take away practical information to implement in your daily practice and share with your colleagues.

Once again, welcome and thank you for attending the 2020 PEIP Conference.

Mike Kolber, BSc, MD, CCFP, MSc
Chair, Practical Evidence of Informed Practice Conference

Your safety is our top priority.

The ACFP is working together with the DoubleTree to make sure you are safe at PEIP. Between limiting capacity to just 15% of our original in-person attendance to a new floor plan to ensure physical distancing, or to changes to our food service, we are committed that all precautions will be met.
